(Introduction)

In 1969, the Hakone Farm moved from Hokone, Kanagawa prefecture in search of large spacious land. The name comes from the origin of the farm. The farm's total area amounts to approximately 18 times the area of the Sapporo Dome. The land is used to its fullest to produce organic crops (a type of farming that does not use any chemical pesticides or fertilizers) and breed farm animals. It is also devoted to making safe and "eco friendly" soil besides making "choice products" that do not have any additives or preservatives and exporting these throughout the nation. As a method of transmitting our dedication to bringing safe and delicious foods directly to the consumers, it is our hope to create as many opportunities for the producers and consumers to meet and network through the various experiences and facilities offered here. Farms in Hokkaido present many ways to be enjoyed in every season. It is our wish and hope to share the many wonderful things nature has to offer to you.

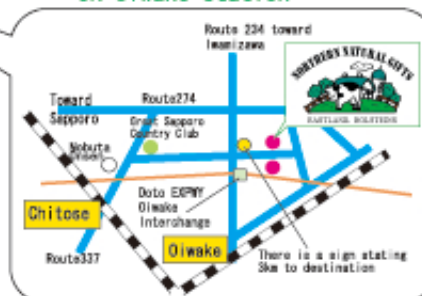

So, come on over to Hakone Farm
